

Black-figure decoration on Greek pots

Black-figure decoration was created when pictures and patterns were painted with liquid clay called 'slip'. This turned black when the pot was fired in a kiln. The reddish-orange colour you can see is the natural colour of the clay.

This hydria, or water jar, is an example of black-figure. You can see soldiers wearing armour and carrying different types of weapons.